

2007 SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA FOREST STEWARDSHIP WORKSHOPS

October 6 in Julian
October 20 in Lake Arrowhead
October 27 in Idyllwild
8 a.m - 4 p.m.

These workshops are intended for present and future owners and managers of forest or woodland properties in Southern California. Professional foresters, watershed and fuels management specialists and plant pathologists will present information on the ecology and historical development of the region's forests and discuss threats to forest and watershed health and sustainability such as drought, climate change, wild fire, insects and disease and excessive erosion. A panel of agencies and organizations will describe technical and financial assistance programs available to land owners. Assessment tools for long-term land conservation will also be introduced. Each workshop will include a field trip to sites demonstrating forest and watershed management practices. Participants will be encouraged to exchange experiences and ask questions.

Chaparral and mixed conifer forest, San Bernardino Mountains, San Gorgonio River

Workshop organizers will solicit feedback on topics to be addressed in future, follow-up workshops.

Three workshops are being offered, each will cover the same topics adapted for application to the regional characteristics of each location. A final agenda and directions to each workshop will be provided to registrants who provide e-mail addresses prior to the workshop.
